Mr. Folder moved to amend by removing from all other railroads in the State all restrictions as to way the state of the state o Mr. Folder moved to amend by removing from all other railroads in the State all restrictions as to way-fare, except that imposed by the general law of 1859.

Mr. Angel said that the general law limited the fare to three cents per mile, except on the Central and Hudgen River Roads. The Central is limited to two cents ger mile, and the Hudson River is also limited to two cents, except during the close of navigation, when the Company are allowed to charge two and a half cents per mile. He was opposed to the amendment, because, among other reasons, it has not been asked for.

Mr. McNoers said that the restrictions on these two companies were imposed under specially. The Hudson River Railroad Company has not asked for relief, and the thought it would be time eaough to consider its claims when they are presented.

Mr. Shafen said that the amendment was introduced for the purpose of embarrassing the bill. Its advocate will not vote for the bill even though his amendment should be adopted, nor will any other Senator of those who may vote for the amendment. Their object is to make the bill so offensive to those living along the Hudson River Railroad that the yearnot vote for it.

Mr. Folders said that he was opposed to removing the restrictions from either road, but equal justice and right demanded that bot roads should be treated alike.
